Poetry.
For the Patriot.
"It is Finished."

Mark! Upon the heated air,
From the "Man of Sorrows" there,
Come the words of import, "It is finished!"
"It is finished!"

What can mean that faltering tone?
His last expiring groan?
Falling on those hearts of stone?
"It is finished!"

Ah! my soul, dost thou not know
Who it was that loved thee so?
Triumphing o'er every foe?
"It is finished!"

Lo! His mighty work is done,
The eternal triumph won,
Victory has crowned the Son.
"It is finished!"

W. L. MASON.

Miscellany.

AUNT BETSY'S PRESENT.

"Well, I must say I think it is hor-ribly mean of your Aunt Betsy, I tell you. After making such a favorite of you all your life, and having you with her ever since you were a mere baby, she might have sent you something worth having on your twenty-first birthday, especially as she knows how poor we are since your father's death," said my mother sharply.

"You had better take it as a hint for the future, and not build any more castles on what Aunt Betsy is likely to do for you," remarked my sister Lena,
while Walter, my only brother, added,
and as usual, with a provoking grin,
"Here endeth my sister Stella's great expectations."

"You need not make such unpleasant remarks," I answered pettishly.
In sending me the portrait of her old sweetheart, poor old auntie has given me her greatest treasure, and she, no doubt, thinks I shall value it as much as she does."

"Well, it may come in useful, after all, for as I expect, you never get a sweetheart, you can imagine he was yours, when you are a poor old maid like Aunt Betsy," said Lena, who prided herself not a little on being engaged at eighteen, while I, at twenty-one,
had never had an offer, not even the ghost of a lover.

I had lived with Aunt Betsy down in her quiet country home in the south of Cornwall until my father's death two years before, when coming up to London for my funeral, I found my mother left in such a strained circumstance that I felt it my duty to stay and earn what money I could to help her; therefore, however, I incurred Aunt Betsy's anger.

"Surely," she wrote, "your brother and sister can help your mother; you have no need to leave me lonely in my old age, after I have had all the trouble of you as a child," etc., etc.

I would willingly have returned, for a close London lodging was not at all to me, but my mother, a plain, dry country house, but my mother seemed to lean on me, and so to dread my leaving her, that I had not the heart to go.

Aunt Betsy neither came nor wrote, and quite resigned myself to the idea that I was hopelessly on her black list, until, in the evening, she brought me the above related event took place.

Now I knew that I was forgiven. In her early youth Aunt Betsy, then the beautiful Elizabeth Marston, my father's only sister, had been engaged to a son and heir of a wealthy London banker.

He had been sent abroad on business for his father just before they were to be married, and through the jealousy of his mother, who was suddenly loved her, and wished to supplant his rival, the engagement had been suddenly broken off by him.

He then remained abroad, and Aunt Betsy never heard from him again.
Just before her death, however, she had presented her with a beautiful little miniature of himself set in gold and diamonds, and this she had kept together with her maiden name—no other lover ever induced her to change it.

As a girl, I had often seen and admired the picture, and when I was presented with the pretty souvenir, I had taken all a girl's keen interest in the love story attached to it. Aunt had always told me it was to be mine, and now I felt certain with this treasure in my possession, that I had not quite lost my place in her favor, though I heard in the same letter that she solemnly commended the portrait to my care, that she had adopted an orphan girl in my place as her companion and probable heiress.

I put the letter and portrait away with a sigh of regret for my old happy

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "My father, Mr. A. S. Spear, of Quincy, Mass., has been a great sufferer from Scurvy, and the enclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not kill him, except in the form of a scurvy sore on the wrist, which about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are no signs of the disease, and he is as good as his father. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. Phillips.

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scurvy sores. The humor caused an immense and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so that it would bleed to flow in many places whenever scratched. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the Sarsaparilla in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquiries have been made of me as to the cure, and I tell them, as I have been told to do, that AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, Quincy, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882.

Yours faithfully, HIRSH PHILLIPS.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scurvy, and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Itch, Scald, Sore, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It cures the blood of all impurities, and gives it a healthy tone. It is sold in large quantities, with appropriate directions, and is sold in small quantities, with appropriate directions.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists, $1.00 per Bottle for 25.

Farm and Garden.

The Market Garden.

ASTALOGUS. The crop of next spring will depend upon a vigorous growth of tops this summer. Do not allow any large number of tops to be cut for use as "fly catchers," as we often see done. Every plant cut now means a severe loss next spring. The thick mass of tops will keep down most weeds; if an occasional tall "pig-weed" establishes itself, pull it up. If seeds were sown to grow plants for making a new plantation, keep the bed clear of weeds, and encourage the plants by occasional hoeing.

Beans are not weather plants, and a sowing of the bush sorts may be made at any time to keep up a succession. If wanted for pickling, the "Refugee" is preferred. If Lima, after reaching the tops of the poles, throw out long strings of weeds, and pull the ends of these, to induce a setting of pods.

BEETS. Continue to thin the earlier sown and keep clear of weeds. "Blood Pump" may still be sown for winter use. We find it much preferable to the large kinds.

CABBAGES AND CAULIFLOWERS. Plants, when large enough, are to be set out from the seed-bed. Land which was occupied by early potatoes, with a liberal manuring, makes an excellent cabbage ground. Give the surface of the soil an occasional dressing with the rake to keep down the weeds. In localities where the "Cabbage-worm" is troublesome, use Pyrethrum powder or hot water.

CARROTS. Continue to work between the rows until the tops are so large as to be in the way.

Celery is usually set out this month. Market gardeners put it upon land heavily manured for early cabbages or other early crop. Prepare the ground by throwing out the soil with the plow, giving twice in the row, and place well-rotted manure in the furrows. Throw the soil back, and work it with the roller and harrow until a fine bed is made. The manured furrows should be three feet apart, and the plants set every six inches in the rows. Keep the plants well cultivated and replace any that may die, from a reserve lot.

CORN. Some of the early sorts may be set out in the garden, and if needed to be saved, select the seed stalks, and mark them by tying on them a strip of white cloth before any ears are cut up. As soon as the ears are all off, cut up and cure the stalks if not wanted for immediate feeding.

CUCUMBERS. If seeds are to be saved, the earliest specimen should be before any are cut for use. Cut all that are large enough, whether needed for use or not, as this will prolong the bearing. Seeds for the pickle crop may still be sown.

TURNIPS. The Ruta Baga sorts may still be sown, and very early this spring. For table use none are equal to the "Long White French," though it is not so large as some others. Give rich soil, use a plenty of seed, and thin early. The Yellowstone and Aberdeen may be sown during the month.

WEDDS. When a crop is removed do not allow the land to grow a crop of weeds. It may be sown to buckwheat, peas, or other plant that will smother the weeds, the crop to be plowed or spaded under before frost.—American Agriculturist, for July.

Fashion Notes.

Tailor-made dresses continue stylish. A perfect fit is the most important requisite of a dress nowadays.

The handsome black paraisols are of Escurial lace in one-piece over satin.

The fashionable sleeves are fuller at the top and closer at the bottom than ever before.

The fashion of turning the hair up from the neck makes the wearing of ruffs or high collars a necessity. It is a good plan to make a straight all-round collar of velvet, and edge it with lace plaiting or lisse filling.

Anecdotes.

A little girl visiting a neighbor with her mother, was gazing curiously at the hostess' new bonnet, when the owner queried:

"Do you like it, Laura?"

"The innocent replied:—"Why mother said it was a perfect fright; but it don't scare me."

A Baptist minister was once asked how it was that he consented to the marriage of his daughter to a Presbyterian.

"Well," he replied, "as far as I have been able to discover, Cupid never studied theology."

A crowded horse car. Enter Mrs. Mulcahey with a jug. Mr. Mahoney, who was seated, facetiously,—"Wud I heuld the whiskey for ye, Mrs. Mulcahey?"

Mrs. M. (with withering sarcasm)—"Thank ye kindly, sor, yer have all ye can heuld now, I'm thinkin'."

"Milkman, why does you milk always look so blue?" inquired the housewife.

"My cows came from Boston, mum," proudly replied the milkman, "and they're blue bloods!"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

"Have you heard from Smith?"

"No. What about him?"

"Why, they say he's lying at death's door."

"Indeed, Well, that merely shows the truth of the proverb, that the ruling passion is strong even in death."

MISSING.

Missing—no many are missing. The old as well as the young. The poor and the rich together. The weak alike with the strong.

Missing—our loved ones wander. We never know how or where. And pass from our sight as surely As smoke fades into the air.

Missing—a man; it may be A citizen famed and well known. Who sinks in the human ocean As ships in the pool a stone.

Missing—our care and riches So vainly are loved or spent. We know that the loved ones left us, But know not whether they went.

Missing—at day time or night time, Under the stars or the sun; They vanish out of our knowledge As sands from an hour-glass run.

Blaine and Logan.

The Republicans of Quincy had a grand national assembly, flag raising on Thursday evening. The State Band of Boston was present to enliven the occasion. About 7 o'clock the citizens commenced to assemble in the Square, and at 8 o'clock, the time the stars and stripes were flung to the breeze, between one and two thousand persons had assembled.

Large poles had been erected nearly opposite to the Town Hall for the flag, and as the band was playing the "Star Spangled Banner," a large, handsome flag, bearing the names of Blaine and Logan and a portrait of the former was unfurled to the breeze.

After a display of fireworks and listening to several pieces of music by the band, the audience gathered in the hall to listen to speeches by several prominent gentlemen who had been announced. The assembly was presided over by Warren W. Adams, Chairman of the Republican Town Committee, who announced the president of the evening, Hon. Everett C. Bumpus, who made a short address.

He then introduced to the audience Hon. W. W. Rice of Worcester, who made a lengthy speech, criticizing the acts of several of the prominent Independents and speaking strongly in favor of Blaine and Logan.

The next speaker was Hon. R. G. Horr of Michigan, a delegate to the Chicago Convention, who helped nominate the Republican candidates. He said he was well acquainted with Mr. Blaine's public career and he would be pleased to have any one point to a single public act of his that made him unworthy of the position to which he is nominated. He was just the man that suited the Western people, for they always knew where to find him. He had held many honorable positions, but always with credit to the office as well as to himself. As for Logan he was most intimately acquainted with him, and knew he was worthy the second place on the ticket. He was a brave soldier and had been shot down four times during the late war, still he had great courage and fought with credit to himself and honor to the country.

Hon. Charles W. Slack of Boston was present and intended to say a few words, but owing to the late hour when Mr. Horr closed his remarks he declined, but promised to speak to the citizens on some future occasion.

OBITUARY. Mr. Matthew M. Tappell, for many years a compositor in the Quincy Patriot office during the time it was published by the late John A. Street, died at his late residence in Wakefield, Mass., on Friday, July 18th, at the ripe old age of 85. He was born in Boston where the Albany depot now stands in 1799, and after learning the art of setting type, was employed on the Boston Herald. He became a member of the firm of Horton & Tappell and edited the Boston Advertiser for several years.

He was quite deaf at the time he was employed in Quincy, and his deafness increased as age advanced. Still, however, he was not in the least impaired, and he kept himself fully informed of all passing events, being a constant reader of the journals to the last week of his life, and has been an earnest politician from the time of Andrew Jackson.

VACATION. Rev. D. M. Wilson, pastor of the Unitarian Church of Quincy, started this week on his summer vacation to Mount Desert, Maine. During his absence his pulpit will be supplied by the following named clergymen:

July 27, Rev. G. A. Thayer of Cincinnati.

August 3, Rev. S. J. Barrows of Boston.

August 10, Rev. Alfred Manchester of Providence.

August 17, Rev. C. A. Staples of Lexington.

August 24, Rev. C. D. Bradlee of Boston.

August 31, Rev. H. P. Collier of Hingham.

NEW ENGINEER. Mr. William S. Hurd, who has been engineer of the Quincy fire steamer for nearly a year, has resigned to accept of the situation of engineer at the granite quarry of Chas. H. Hardwick & Co., on Quarry street.

WE ARE PLEASED to learn that the Engineers of the Fire Department have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. William J. Lewis of Portland, Maine. He is not only an engineer but an excellent fireman and comes well recommended.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT. The estate of the late John S. Butler on Washington street, Quincy, which was purchased a few years since by Mr. John R. Graham, and more recently by Mr. John E. Drake has undergone great changes this season. It has been well improved and the painter, Mr. Harvey French, is now putting on the finishing touches which makes it one of the most attractive of the many estates on the street. It is situated on elevated ground, having a fine landscape view for miles around, and of Boston Harbor.

POULTRY TAXPAYERS. The attention of poultry-tax payers is called to a notice in another column, which has been sent to them. The collector notifies all who do not pay on or before August 1, that the same will be collected with costs, and as he means business it will be greatly to their interest to attend to his demand at once.

SUMMER VISITORS. The cool weather and hard times work against the summer resorts. The travel to the beaches is a third less than usual, and to the mountains there is a large reduction. It is estimated that there are 20,000 fewer visitors in the Catskills than there were at this time last year.

TEMPERANCE CONVENTION. The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold a convention at Martha's Vineyard, August 3, 4 and 5. Among the speakers on this occasion will be Miss Frances E. Willard of Illinois, Mrs. Pearson of England, Mrs. M. J. Wall of Iowa, Miss Elizabeth W. Greenwood of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. S. F. Chapin of South Carolina.

BRAINTREE'S TAX. The rate of tax on the estate of the late John S. Butler, which was $14 per 1,000 as against $13.80 in 1883.

This will entitle the city to the free delivery system, which will probably be asked for when Congressmen Long is again in Washington.

NEW YORK BANKS. The Boston Herald says, "The New York banks have been very busy this week, and the business of the office having increased some thirty-three per cent. during that period. Methodists at Hough's Neck.

On Wednesday about two hundred people assembled at this well-known resort in East Braintree to enjoy the festivities of the annual union picnic of the Methodist of Quincy, under the direction of the West Quincy Sabbath School. The day was all that could be wished for such an occasion, making the cool spacious grove by the sea shore a most favorable resort. Starting at eight o'clock in the barges, the parties at their arrival entered at once into the enjoyment of the occasion, and before the last train arrived the air was resounding with the shouts of happy youth in their merriment and from the group which surrounded the organ; the foot-ball had begun its unceasing journey among the tree tops, and the yacht "Diadem" under the competent management of Mr. Hayward, with well filled sails, sped in and out toward Mill Cove or Lovell's.

Dinner hour was characterized by an abundance of all the good things which satisfy the reasonable appetite, and was announced by music and a march by the little folks, managed by Mr. J. D. Nutting whose vigilance for our welfare during the day denoted a well-earned experience in picnic service.

The day seemed one of unqualified success, much credit being due to the committee, and to Mr. Hayward for his care of the many passengers entrusted to him during the day, which kindness will be remembered long after the bouquets furnished to the ladies from his well-filled gardens have passed away. But such that such occasions might be repeated.

A Trip to Mt. Desert, No. 3.

We closed last No. 2 with an account of a nice ride to the top of Green Mountain. On returning to the Rodick House the Press Association received an invitation from Mr. Henry Tucker of the Maine Central Railroad to enjoy a sail on Frenchman's bay, which they decided to accept, and a most enjoyable time was had. The steamer stopped a few moments at Sullivan's Cove, some what noted for its recent mining operations. One of the fruitless efforts of the company was a shaft 100 feet deep and extending 150 feet under the tide water. We visited at this place the St. John's hotel; a house open for summer boarders, which commands a good view of the bay and islands. It had only a few guests, it being little early in the season. After enjoying several hours on the little steamer we landed again at Bar Harbor with a good appetite for supper.

In the evening we had the pleasure of listening to a very fine concert by the following artists who accompanied our party, and volunteered their services on this occasion: Miss Lizzie Webb Cary, Soprano; Mrs. Carrie Carper Mills, Contralto; Mr. W. H. Duhamel, Tenor; Mr. A. B. Hitchcock, Baritone; Mr. C. A. Marshall, Accompanist; Mr. Leland T. Powers, Impersonator.

The hall although quite large was well filled, and the entertainment a perfect success. Mr. Powers did finely. He has on for some time in Quincy. Tuesday was spent in buckskin riding to different points of interest on the island. In the forenoon the party went about eight miles and visited the "Ovens," which are deep caverns made in the rocky cliffs on the northerly shore by the dashing waves. In the afternoon a longer ride was enjoyed in an opposite direction, and visits made to "Spouting Horn," "Anemone Cave," "Great Head," "Otter Cove" and other places of interest. "Spouting Horn," perhaps, is as grand a sight as any we saw. This consists of a funnel-shaped cavern under a cliff facing the ocean, and extending back some twenty feet from the surface of the cliff above. The water at all times, excepting at very low tide, rushes into the tunnel with terrific fury, and in a storm the water has been known to dash up through the chasm several hundred feet into the air.

The Anemone Cave is a large cavern in the rock, the bottom is covered with water of different hues and quite attractive.

On Tuesday evening another nice entertainment was given in the hall. The quartette rendered several enjoyable numbers, and then Mr. Powers gave the comedy of "David Garrick." He had a very fine success, and was well patronized all the way through the whole of the three acts, without any change of dress or use of stage accessories. The instantaneous change of voice, facial expression, and costume, which he played required to give it its proper effect, and the generous applause that frequently broke in upon the dialogue and greeted Mr. Powers at the close, showed that the ten characters which he personated were made real to his audience.

Miss Faith E. Morse, a twelve year old daughter of Mr. Charles F. Morse, of the Marlboro Times, gave two charming songs, which received warm applause. The remainder of the evening was spent in remarks by the members of the Association, and in passing resolves thanking those who had done so much to make the excursion a complete success.

The next morning the party was obliged to be up bright and early and left at breakfast by candle light, and to leave at 5 o'clock on the boat, to take the early train for Boston. The ride home was long and somewhat fatiguing—taking twelve hours—still there was much pleasure and enjoyment in it. A due excursion has been made, enjoyed by the members of the Massachusetts Press Association, and many thanks are due the officers for their efficient services.

Obituary.

Died at Cambridgeport, July 22d, William M. Pray, aged 81 years.

Mr. Pray was born and reared in Quincy, and was the grandson of one of its earliest settlers. Few men of more men of his age could be found away from home more deserving of eulogy than the subject of this notice. For over a half century he devoted his time to the teaching of music, and with great success. His love for the art and his personal attainments in it, were of his life, and his attainments in his services always in request. His method of teaching was simple and clear, his pupils seldom failing to comprehend his instruction. It would be difficult to find a teacher who, in the course of a long life, accomplished so much, or who excelled him in imparting solid and substantial information pertaining to so difficult a subject. He earned by hard work a competency, and for many years was permitted to enjoy the pleasure of retirement, and to devote all that a man of culture and taste could desire. He faithfully performed his work, and in all the relations of life he lived to a ripe old age, and at the close of a long and useful life he peacefully passed to his rest.

FAST TIME. The locomotive Mount Hope, which carried the Maine Press Association last week, ran from South Abington to Plymouth—eighteen miles—in sixteen minutes. It is said to be the fastest time ever made by a passenger train on the Old Colony road.

CONVENTION. The National Prohibition Convention held at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, this week, nominated John P. StJohn for President, and Hon. William Daniel of Maryland, for Vice President.

MONUMENT. A monument to the memory of Capt. Webb, the intrepid swimmer who lost his life in attempting to swim through the whirlpool at Niagara Falls, is to be erected near where he made his fatal plunge.

A Bridgewater dog, after being knocked fifteen feet into the air by a passing train, is being treated for its eyesight, of which he was deprived by sickness when four years of age.

The New York post-office employees during the year, through the kindness of carriers, 29,555,770 pieces of mail matter.

The President has issued a proclamation urging strict sanitary measures to prevent the invasion of pestilence.

Cleverly counterfeited 25-cent pieces are in circulation in Vermont.

District Court, Quincy.

The following cases have come before the District Court this week:

Thomas Horn of Quincy, for a third drunk was fined $5 and costs.

Hough's Acc. Items.

Notwithstanding the cool and unpleasant weather which has continued the entire month of July, the Houghs, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Hough, and their children, have enjoyed themselves happily, and those who were occupying rented cottages for this month only, were glad to leave.

Mr. Carter's family, residing in the Can Cottage, left on Thursday for their home in Roxbury.

Mr. George H. Wilson and family and Mr. William Howe and family, located at the Deering Cottage, returned to their homes on Wednesday.

The Hough's Neck Social Union held an adjourned meeting this Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the cottage of M. E. Green. It is hoped that all the members will be present and enjoy a short time in a friendly and social discussion on matters relating to the best interests of the association, thereby cementing the bonds of friendship. In union there is strength.

The young ladies from Dorchester occupying Ocean View Cottage took their departure Friday morning for their homes. The young gentlemen from Dorchester who pitched their tent on the side of Great Hill broke camp Thursday morning.

Mr. Leander Cavanagh was quite agreeably surprised on Wednesday morning by some twenty-five of his Quincy friends. The hours were very pleasantly spent in social enjoyment.

Mr. John L. Bird and family who have been enjoying the month of July in the Hurst Cottage, left for home on Thursday.

A new set of occupants are to take up their residences in the cottages which have just been vacated.

The third regatta of the season by the Quincy Yacht Club and the second for the championship of a cash prize in each class, was sailed over the usual course on Wednesday. Owing to the extremely light breeze, the yachts in the first and second classes did not have their time taken. The race will be sailed over at an early date.

Mr. Charles H. Spear, with her son and daughter, Master Horace and Miss Lottie, returned to their homes in Quincy on Tuesday, having enjoyed a week very pleasantly at Grand View Cottage.

Mr. Jacob H. Hervey and family are occupying one of the Twin cottages near Mr. Meers'.

Mr. Henry G. Pratt and wife, Mr. Charles E. Woodbury and wife, and Mr. Frank G. Pratt and wife, are in the Twin cottage near Mr. Hervey.

TAXES. The rate of taxes in Quincy this year is $15 on $1,000. Last year it was $14.

NEW CHURCH. The Presbyterians of Quincy, who have for a few Sundays held services in Faxon Hall, realizing that they are numerous enough to support a church of their own, have decided to build an edifice. A committee of the society we learn are negotiating for a building lot, and if successful a chapel will soon be commenced.

Some 200 or more were present at their services on Sunday last. Rev. V. A. Lewis conducted the opening service, and Rev. Dr. Muchmore of Philadelphia, editor of the Presbyterian, preached from Psalm lxxxv. 2. After a vigorous discourse, he gave some valuable hints from his own personal experience in regard to building a church, relating the story of a little girl, who he visited, who, when dying, gave him the contents of her metal bank, $4.41, and after much urging, made him promise that he would build a church with it for poor people. A few years afterward a frame building was erected, and the Sunday school and church outgrew it, a handsome edifice costing $70,000 now occupies the site, the money being mainly raised by the story of little Fanny's legacy.

ACCIDENT. Miss Susan H. Husey of this town met with quite a serious accident on Sunday last, while visiting Nantasket Beach. She was walking on the veranda at the Nantasket House, near the stairway, and some one in the crowd stepping on her dress caused her to fall down the stairs, thereby dislocating her left shoulder, breaking one of the tendons and straining the others. She was conveyed to one of the chambers in the Nantasket House, where she was attended by two physicians and kindly cared for. She is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances, but will be unable to be removed to her home for the present.

BITTEN BY A BEE. The six-month-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse P. Newcomb at Quincy Neck, was bitten by a rat early last Saturday morning. The parents were aroused about three o'clock by the moans of the child, and upon examination the left hand was found covered with blood; the child's clothing and the bed-clothes were also saturated with it. They immediately telephoned for Dr. Davis, who came and examined the hand and found it up. Under his care the little one is doing nicely. There were twelve prints of the teeth on the third and fourth fingers, the latter being bitten quite badly. Mr. Newcomb, we are pleased to say, shot the rat the next day.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS. The Good Templars of Quincy held a meeting in Faxon Hall on Tuesday evening for the election of officers. A goodly number was present and the evening was spent very enjoyably. After the election of officers and attending to other business, the members of the lodge were invited to the lower hall to partake of ice cream and cake, which invitation was happily accepted. Having done justice to these luxuries the company took their departure for home having enjoyed a few hours very pleasantly.

DROWNED. Two small boys were drowned near Bradley's super-phosphate works, at North Weymouth, on Thursday evening. William Cullivan, aged eight years, son of Daniel Cullivan, who works for Messrs. Bradley & Co., and Michael Masterson, of Boston, aged ten years. No one saw them at the time of the accident. Their clothes were found in a skiff, and it is supposed that the boat got loose, and they were frightened and jumped overboard, thinking that they might waste ashore. The bodies were recovered about ten o'clock on the same evening.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement of Charles Crane.

After a vigorous discourse, he gave some valuable hints from his own personal experience in regard to building a church, relating the story of a little girl, who he visited, who, when dying, gave him the contents of her metal bank, $4.41, and after much urging, made him promise that he would build a church with it for poor people. A few years afterward a frame building was erected, and the Sunday school and church outgrew it, a handsome edifice costing $70,000 now occupies the site, the money being mainly raised by the story of little Fanny's legacy.

Poetry.
 For the Patriot.
LINES
 In memory of ALFRED SAMPTON, who died in Quincy, June 6, 1884.
 One, God walking in the heavens,
 In the early part of day,
 Looking down upon his children,
 Reading hearts which open lay,
 Saw one spirit, sad and sad,
 And he took that soul away.
 Then God stooped from out his glory
 Came with love and spirit tender,
 And he whispered the old story

Fashion Notes.
Clasps are in great favor instead of buttons.

Travelling costumes ought to be made of some good place fabric that will stand the dust.

A favorite form for a white suit is a Mother Hubbard style and belted waist with plain tucked skirt.

French cashmeres, to be used as waists or draperies in combination with plain goods, have little figures in bright silk woven so as to look like embroidery.

The skirt used for trimming skirts is arranged in one wide band at the foot of the skirt, or in several bands covering the whole front and the sides of the skirt.

Black Hercules brand will be used to trim collars, cuffs, and pockets, and will be trimmed with another shade of the same color, as black makes it look rustic.

The fashion of bordering a skirt, outlining a waistcoat and making the cuffs of a gown of rows of braid, ravelled at the ends to form a fringe, will be common this winter.

The round waist is likely to be the most common this winter, those which are round in the back being preferred even when the front is pointed or curved as part of a polonaise.

Household Receipts.
COFFEE CAKE. Five cups of flour, two eggs, one cup of butter, one-quarter of a pound of citron, one cup of coffee, one teaspoonful of soda, one cup of molasses, cloves, one cup of sugar, cinnamon, one cup of raisins, one cup of currants.

COCONUT CAKE. Two cups of sugar, one cup of butter, one cup of milk, five eggs, three cups of flour; bake in layers. Custard—one-half pint milk, six tablespoonfuls of coconut, one-half teaspoonful of corn starch, one egg; boil together and spread between layers.

RUBBER RINGS. The rubber rings used in the sealing of preserve jars usually become hard and worthless, and cannot be serviceable again.

CUMBER PICKLES. Pick and wash clean with a cloth, put them in a wooden tub or pail, make a strong brine of rock salt, enough to cover them well, and pour on scalding hot. Let stand twenty-four hours, then take out and put them in good, sharp cider vinegar; add a tablespoonful of pulverized alum to a gallon of vinegar; spike to taste. Never cut or bruise a cucumber for a pickle.

REEF CROQUETTES. Suppose that you have some pieces of cold roast beef that you do not know how to use to good advantage, also some bits of cold ham, try this way of disposing of them.

THREE MILWAUKEE LAWYERS recently settled an estate with a vengeance. It was valued at $32,000, and they put in bills amounting to $25,000 for services rendered.

Temperance.
Furnished for publication by the W. C. T. Union Spider and Remuseller.

With the spider is always associated the feeling of disgust. It is never a welcome visitor. Whenever it intrudes itself into our presence the natural instinct is to crush it under foot.

A jaunt bonnet is of shirred red crape with a small bunch of cat's tails in front.

Pointed overskirts looked high on one side and held by ribbon loops and ends are popular.

Travelling costumes ought to be made of some good place fabric that will stand the dust.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifling with the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unnoticed exposure, is often but the beginning of a real sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has won its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.
"In 1871 I had a terrible cough, and passed many a sleepless night. I tried many remedies, but all failed. I then tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and after using it a few days, I found it gave me up. Croup—A Mother's Testimony.
"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was seized with croup. He seemed as if he would never get over it. I tried many remedies, but all failed. I then tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and after using it a few days, I found it gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and after using it a few days, I found it gave me up."

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and after using it a few days, I found it gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and after using it a few days, I found it gave me up."

Poetry.
For the Patriot.
The Surprise Picnic.

It was Wednesday noon, yes, I'm sure I've got it right;
If my head at first was muddled, it's balanced
now all right;

And I'm settled on the fact its much the better way
To take things as they happen, and some how make a day.

And if at first its doubtful, and you see your way
not clear,
Just take a dose of common sense, a blessed thing if true;

Or at least I thought so, Wednesday, when my girls came tramping in.
Found me packing rags and carpets, and my hair not looking trim.

Why even I thought of my rags and the room
were all alike.
So while I muddled, hardly knew just what
to do;

But those girls came to my rescue, fairly said you just do as I say;
And I thought I'd best obey, for I'd hate to catch a town.

So while I bled my hair and donned a better
suit,
They brought round from confusion and arrangements all winter.

And with quick and graceful touches the table
soon they spread;
The taste and skill displayed, clearly proved a steady hand.

Butter rolls were in the corner, Boston
waffles in the room,
The reason of her strange request of course you won't ask why.

But I rather think her trip among the mountains
had done her good;
So of course she sits with pleasure, and a reason why she should.

Salmon fish on either side, and sardines by the sea,
For which Mrs. Pickens' fingers took two hours
by the clock.

There's have I ever read, its left for you to say,
Don't judge me harshly girls 'cause I couldn't eat that day.

The cake was just exquisite, almost a winter's store,
Did you mean for me to eat it down as they did in days of yore?

O beg pardon for absurdities, you know I'm rather of a green,
I always "knowed" I'd find a child, it's "natural"
like I mean.

The flowers, too, were lovely, now fruit-which'd looked so good,
And they'd had you dear, how charming, now turn round and let me pass.

Our waiters were artistic, I think you'd like their style,
And their manner while serving I know would make you smile.

There were cream cakes by the wholesale, say
take off a gross or more,
Some advice was freely given, shall we lay it up
in store?

The sailing off the wafters while the summer
was on,
Was enjoyed by all our party if but one did have a bean.

We were quite content I'm sure, for while sitting on the lawn,
Some advice was freely given, shall we lay it up
in store?

And now dear friends "good-bye," long ago it was a time to close;
So I'll be home you and seek my night's repose.

While I kneel in fervent prayer as the twilight grows deep,
And ask our Heavenly Father each young heart to safely keep.

—My loving,
Polly.

Miscellany.
POLLY'S RELIGION.

There can be little doubt that if the people of Ball's Ferry had been asked to decide which was the most pious family in their midst, they would unanimously have named the Demmings.

They had long been the nucleus about which the Presbyterian church had gathered. Now Squire Demming's pew faced that of the pastor, and go matter how stormy the weather there was his venerable white head in its place and Mother Demming's placid face beside it.

The unmarried sisters, and Joe filled the pew. Young Mr. Floyd (who was radical in his views), or any visiting clergyman, might preach what they pleased, the Demmings listened with the same calm, devout pleasure. It never occurred to them to dispute any opinion promulgated by a minister of their church. It was "all good," like the Bible. There was no room for choice in either.

The Squire would be well as likely to read a chapter in Numbers to a penitent sinner as one in St. John.
The effect on his own mind was very much the same. Both had the soothing effect of a repeated claim which set him safely apart from other men.

You would always find on the Demmings' centre table all the papers and magazines published by the denomination.
Their house was the headquarters for all the good people of the vicinity.

The girls could tell you at a moment's notice where such or such a minister was now, how long Dr. D. of St. Louis had stayed in Europe and how much money had been given to dear Mr. J.
by his flock in Chicago to visit his Holy Land. They were exceedingly fond, too, of religious poems and could repeat whole pages of Henry Kirke White and Miss Havergal. They took an eager interest in all foreign missionary work; the story of these heroic men in African jungles or Indian jungles had all the dramatic power of a novel for them. Grace declared she had a positive affection for that lovely Miss W., who was at work in Ceylon, and considered young Mrs. S., who was in Hong Kong, one of the apostolic type of Christians, although she had never seen either of them. Isabella took more interest in the secular doctrine coming into notice. She professed a delight in symbolism, filled her room with religious emblems and pictures, wore black on Good Friday and lilies on Easter, and fasted as rigorously as any Episcopalian. Every week she noted down in her diary the change in her spiritual condition. The whole family were fluent in the use of theological terms and talked garrulously

of the doctrines of their denomination;
indeed, works of controversy on this subject filled their book shelves.

This familiarity with the outer garments of religion made them appear devoted in the eyes of others, and in their own. They were a well-to-do family, and hence had felt none of the temptations of wealth. Their pleasant, mild harmonious, which was in fact due to temperament, was set down by their friends as the effect of piety.

Life to the Demmings was like a long summer day until Joe brought his wife home. None of the family had ever seen her. They knew she was one of the Anstruthers of Kentucky.

"There are Anstruthers in the United Presbyterian church," said Grace. "I hope Mary belongs to our membership."

"Oh, yes, certainly," said Joe, eagerly.
He was just starting to be married and he was very anxious that they all should love Polly in advance."

"Does she sing in the choir?" asked Isabella.

"I think not," said Joe. "She has one of the sweetest voices—a low contralto. And you ought to hear her laugh, Belle! The merriest ring—oh, she'll bring new life into this house!"

The girls smiled. They were fond of Joe and ready to welcome his wife.

"But I hope she is ready to take a leading place in the church," said Grace, who had had gone to see the new girl who had come to live in the house. "Where is she, Grace?"

"In Uncle Ben's room," she reads
the New York papers to him every day
now. They play backgammon together, and they have one of those silly books of Artemus Ward's. I heard him laughing and swearing harder than ever, so he must be pleased. I wonder she can stand it."

"It is hard to understand her," said Isabella dryly. "Mary is not as careless as to her associations as we should be."

Tom had been listening eagerly.
"Enough said," he broke out with a thump of his fist on the table. "If Joe's wife can take thought of that lonely old man up there, there's better stuff in her than I expected. I'll go up and make her acquaintance."

For several days afterwards Tom's voice was heard joining in the jokes and laughter that came out of Uncle Ben's room.

"Mary seems to have enchanted them both," said Grace. "Tom is clean and shaven to-day, and looks like a human being."

"Perhaps she treats him like a human being," said Joe.

But even he was startled when Mary came down that evening dressed for a walk, and nodding brightly to Tom,
and smiling at him with her head tucked up to her ears. "I found your book, Joe. Brother Tom will be my escort."

Tom followed her slouching to the gate. He stopped there. Shame, defiance, misery looked out of his eyes.
"See here, Mrs. Demming! I reckon you wouldn't have asked me to go with you."

Polly's tender, steady eyes met his.
"Yes, I know."

"D'ye know I'm a thief? I was in jail at Pittsburgh for a year."

Polly drew her breath hard. A prayer to God for help went up from her heart in that second of time. She held out both her hands. "Yes, Joe,
I told me. But this is all over now—all over. You have begun new again, Brother Tom. Come!"

She put her hand in his arm as they walked down the street. He did not speak to her until they came back.
Then he stopped her again at the gate.
"My sisters never have been seen with me in public since I came back. I'll never forget this of you, Mary, never!"

A month later the squire said to his wife, "Did you know that Mary was over his mathematics with Tom Democratic Rally.

The Democrats of Quincy held a grand ratification meeting at the Town Hall on Saturday evening last. A generous notice had been given and a large gathering assembled. The platform was occupied by the speakers and prominent Democratic citizens of Quincy, namely: Hon. William A. Hodges, William G. A. Patten, Dr. James T. Pennington, William A. Mowley, George Cahill, John H. Dee, Peter Butler and others.

The meeting was called to order by Hon. William A. Hodges, who called on John H. Dee as presiding officer of the evening. Mr. Dee accepted the position and made a short address. He then introduced Hon. Peter B. Olney, of New York, son-in-law of Peter Butler, Esq., of this town.

Mr. Olney endeavored, in a plain, off-hand manner, to show the many defects in the present Republican management, and the needs of reform in the administration. He said he was personally acquainted with Gov. Cleveland, and knew his interests were with the labor party.

Hon. Thomas J. Gargan, an able speaker from Boston was next introduced. He compared in a vigorous manner the two parties, and endeavored to show his audience where they should cast their votes if they were friends of good government.

Mr. Josiah Quincy was the concluding speaker of the evening. He spent the half hour allotted to him in showing the defects in Mr. Blaine's acts while Secretary of State. Instead of protecting American citizens travelling in Ireland, he allowed them to remain in prison for months. In conclusion Mr. Quincy said: "If any Blaine Republican of this town cares to malign him, I have in these remarks given an incorrect view of Mr. Blaine's record. I shall be happy to debate the matter with him in public at his early convenience."

A band of music from Boston entertained the occasion both before and after the addresses, and, in all, it was a successful Democratic opening of the present exciting campaign.

Public Schools.

The public schools will commence the fall and winter term on Monday next. There has been a very long vacation and the teachers and scholars have had a cool and comfortable time to enjoy themselves.

Time has made some changes in teachers, as it naturally will where there are so many employed as in Quincy, as will be noticed by the following report:

High School.—No changes. Adams School.—Mr. Geo. H. Danforth, principal, has the typhoid fever at his home in Dover, N. H., and will probably be absent at least a month. The new teachers are Miss Alzie H. Hayward of South Milford; Miss Eliza F. Dolan, Quincy; Miss Lizzie Mason, Quincy.

Coddington School.—The new teachers are Miss Mary E. Cram, Meredith Village, N. H.; Miss Annie H. Webster, Haverhill.

Quincy School.—The new teachers are Miss Mary E. Dinegan of Quincy, Miss Mary Boyd of Quincy.

Washington School.—No change. Willard School.—Miss Ida E. Allen of Bridgewater, is the only new teacher.

Wollaston School.—Mr. Henry C. Parker goes to Somerville to become principal of Morse school at a salary of $1,600.

Mr. F. F. Murdoch, formerly principal of the Adams school, goes from Somerville to the Bridgewater Normal School.

Mr. Frank L. Keith of Bridgewater, becomes principal of the Wollaston school.

The large school building moved from the Adams Academy lot to the Coddington school-yard, has had seats, blackboards and other conveniences placed in it, and will now accommodate three large schools in good shape. Only one of the rooms, the lower one, will probably be occupied at present, and that by the smallest of scholars; those who would probably have gone into the basement of the old school-house, and Miss Kelly, a faithful teacher for several years, will take charge of this school.

Atlantic.

A handsome new flag bearing the names of Blaine and Logan was flung to the breeze at Atlantic on Thursday evening. It was a warm and delightful evening and a large gathering for this small village was present to witness the ceremonies. The front of Mr. Gurney's store and the trees in his yard were gaily trimmed with Chinese lanterns, which threw a charm over the occasion. A Blaine and Logan club, Capt. W. H. Bowker of Atlantic, was present, dressed in uniform and bearing torches. As the club marched from the railroad station they were preceded by a drum and followed by a collection of Blaine and Logan clubs. On arriving at the store they found a stand had been erected for the speakers a few feet in front of the piazza; and after unfurling the flag to the breeze, Mr. Warren W. Adams, Chairman of the Republican Town Committee, called the assembly to order, and after a few remarks introduced Col. Merrill of Wollaston. He spoke in flattering terms of Blaine, and alluded to the grand reception he received at Manchester on that same day, at the New England Fair, to which the speaker had the pleasure of being present.

E. E. Williamson, Esq., of Wollaston, was next introduced. He spoke in his usual earnest and intelligent manner, and was listened to with much pleasure. He is a gentleman who takes much interest in political matters and keeps himself well posted in facts and figures.

George A. Littlefield of Wollaston, made the concluding speech of the evening. He is a gifted speaker and made a good impression on his audience.

A house furnished or unfurnished is wanted.

Political.

A few gentlemen, who were dissatisfied with the Democratic nominations, met at the Lyceum room on Monday evening and formed a Blaine and Logan club with the following officers: President, Robert Kent; Vice-President, Edward Powers; Secretary, John J. Byron; Treasurer, William Barrett.

The Boston office of the Messrs. Josiah Quincy, Winslow Warren and A. J. C. Swenden are stamping Maine this week in support of the Democratic ticket.

The Democrats held their Convention at Worcester on the same day, and nominated for State officers the following gentlemen:

For Governor—William C. Endicott of Salem.

For Lieutenant Governor—James S. Grinnell of Greenfield.

For Secretary of State—Jeremiah Crowley of Lowell.

For Treasurer and Receiver-General—Charles Marsh of Springfield.

For Auditor—John Hopkins of Millbury.

For Attorney-General—John W. Cummings of Fall River.

For Electors-at-Large—Jonas H. French of Gloucester and Reuben Noble of Westfield.

SMASH-UP. Last Saturday evening as Mr. James N. Clark, with his wife, was returning from the illumination at Nantasket beach in a buggy, when near Weymouth, and driving carefully along they were run into by a party in a carriage, and the buggy was overturned, and the vehicle was so much damaged that it was abandoned by the roadside and compelling them to take passage with a neighboring friend. The occupants of the carriage continued on their way, never stopping to ascertain the amount of damages inflicted. "Jim" is on his track.

RETURNED. Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Farnall, who for the past three weeks have been enjoying the pure air and medicinal waters of Sharon Springs, N. Y., returned on Monday evening. The trip was a very enjoyable one, and it is hoped that our friends will be greatly benefited by the jaunt. Mr. Farnall, having a delicate constitution, found secured under a huge boulder some fine petrified specimens. One that we had the pleasure of seeing was a bunch of beautiful leaves, which were grouped in the most artistic and perfect manner as if from the hands of a sculptor.

New counterfeit silver dollars are in circulation. They are a little lighter and slightly different in color from the genuine, but the difference is not easily detected.

Quincy Point Items.

SPORT. On Tuesday morning the mackerel which have been so wary this summer, struck in our river in large schools, and soon great sport was enjoyed by both sexes of all ages, from a score or more of boats, and from the bridge and old steamboat wharf. The excitement was great, and the mackerel and salt pork were in the greatest demand, and until the tide turned the best of fishing was enjoyed, many getting two or three hundred a piece and all good size.

At evening of the same day the success of the morning was repeated, and such a tide since the fishing has been good. The beautiful moonlight nights of the week have been enjoyed by large numbers of people on the bridge, some as fishers and others as spectators, none of whom can help being impressed by the loveliness of the scene about them.

THIS AND THAT.

School begins on Monday. September came in gloriously; it gave us three perfect days and summer weather was then restored, and few feel sorry for the past two months have been too cool for a New England summer, which we claim as our right. If the warm or rather hot weather continues the schools will desire several weeks more of vacation.

Morning service will begin to-morrow at the Congregational Church, which has had a month's vacation. E. M. F.

IMPROVEMENTS. The Old Colony Railroad Company intend to make more improvements at the Quincy station. The large piece of land on the western side of the track, a few rods south of the station, is being graded. A large quantity of loam from the skating rink is being carting upon it, and we learn that a handsome lawn and flower path will grace this vacant lot another season.

Public Reception.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Pennington tendered them a public reception at Faxon Hall on Wednesday evening. A few notices were sent out on Tuesday afternoon, announcing the meeting and inviting the public, but the notice given was so short only a few from Quincy were present, and those mostly members of lodges and associations who had previously been notified. There were delegations present from Boston, Cambridge, North Cambridge, Stoughton, Amesbury, Melrose, Hingham, North and East Weymouth, and other places.

The Granitic Temple of Honor of Quincy, headed by Simon Scamwell, Worthy Chief Templar, marched from the Temple room to Faxon Hall in a body. After the several delegations had arrived, Henry H. Faxon, Esq., called the meeting to order and announced that the friends of Prohibition in Quincy desired to elect delegates to the State Prohibition Convention to be held in Boston on Wednesday next. The meeting was accordingly organized by the election of Mr. Henry Chubbuck, Chairman, and Mr. Charles A. Follett, Secretary, and the following delegates were chosen:

Charles A. Follett, Thomas Snell, Mrs. Henry Barker, Mrs. Harriet Joy, Mrs. M. A. Paul, Mrs. L. A. Pierce, Miss Eva M. Brown, Henry H. Faxon, Simon Scamwell, Jacob Flint, Henry Chubbuck, and Bridge Joy, North Weymouth, E. J. Paul.

The convention was then closed and the reception meeting was called to order and Mr. Samuel R. McCready of Cambridge, President of the State Reform Club, was chosen Chairman of the meeting. Earnest and eloquent addresses, eulogizing Mr. and Mrs. Pennington on their labors in the West, were made by James H. Roberts of North Cambridge, President of the State Reform Club; Benjamin R. Jewell of Amesbury, Secretary of Massachusetts; Total Abstinence; Ammi Cutler of Stoughton, Treasurer of the State Reform Club; Edgar W. Whittemore of Melrose, Grand Worthy Commander of the Good Templars of Massachusetts; Frank P. Dyer of Hingham, Secretary of the Hingham Total Abstinence Society; W. S. McDonald of Cambridgeport, Secretary of the Cambridge Reform Association; Samuel R. McCready of Cambridge, President of the State Reform Club. A few remarks were made by Rev. R. F. Sawyer of Quincy, Grand Worthy Chaplain of the Grand Temple of Honor, and Henry H. Faxon of Quincy.

After many warm words of welcome Mrs. Pennington made a short address thanking them for this kind reception. She was followed by Mr. Pennington, who also expressed his thanks for this warm greeting, and gave the audience some account of his labors in the West, and the temperance work generally. Mr. Pennington being Grand Worthy Templar of the Temple of Honor of Minnesota and Dakota, has a territory of 900 miles to travel over and to look after the interest of the cause.

Mrs. Pennington being Grand Worthy Secretary of the Good Templars of Minnesota finds much to do in this noble work.

The meeting, although called to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Pennington, proved to be a strong rallying meeting for prohibition, and the audience was entertained and pressed most forcibly to put on the harness and go to work for the Prohibition ticket at the November election. Those who did not think it wise to leave Governor Robinson, were spoken of in no pleasant terms, and were used as badly, yes, worse than the Independents were by the Republican caucus; for they had been invited to come to a public reception, and when they put in an appearance they were first hit on one cheek and then on the other.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT. On Thursday afternoon, as Mr. William Packard was moving from Canal street to Wollaston, four stoves were loaded into a wagon, and Mr. Elmer N. Newcomb seated himself on one of them when from some unknown cause the horse became frightened and was unmanageable. Mr. Newcomb was thrown from the team, but with the exception of some bad bruises, fortunately escaped any serious injury. The horse that was things his own way upset the wagon and badly damaged all the stoves. The loss to Mr. Packard must be over one hundred dollars.

RECEPTION. Mr. Philip Pinel and daughter who have been visiting friends in Scotland for the past two months, returned to their home on Friday of last week, and on Tuesday evening of this week a reception was tendered them by many friends at their residence on Granite street. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all and many good wishes and congratulations were expressed.

Hough's Neck.

The little hamlet by the sea is fast becoming very quiet and calm in looking. But if September should continue as warm as the past few days have been, those who are fortunate in remaining there will have the enjoyment of weather they expected in July and August.

Large parties are getting scarce. Mr. Alexander, at the Sea Breeze Cottage, is to entertain a large party to-morrow.

There was a large gathering at French's Hall last Saturday evening, to listen to a fine entertainment, given in honor of the Hough's Neck School Union. The following was the programme:

Overture, Loud Family. Reading Selection, Mrs. Burrell. Piano Solo, Mr. Louis Thibault. Duets, Messrs. Packard and Norris. Song, Miss Mattie Wood.

Master Solo, Miss Mary Packard. Song, Miss Maria Deane. Piano Solo, Mr. L. Morton Packard. Reading, Mrs. Wheeler. Song, Master Louis.

Solo, Mr. Thomas Norris. Reading, Mr. and Master Louis. Song, Mr. Charles Porter. Song, Miss Mary Packard. Reading, Mrs. Burrell.

The entertainment throughout was very excellent, and the talent employed was of a high order. It is hoped that next season several more of these entertainments will be enjoyed in the spacious new hall which the Association have in contemplation.

The final business meeting of this season of the Hough's Neck School Union is to be held this Saturday evening in Mrs. Green's cottage. It is hoped that all who feel an interest in the prosperity of the Association will be present.

A Dinner and a Kiss.

"I have brought your dinner, father,"

The blacksmith's daughter said, as she took from her arm a kettle and lifted its shining lid.

"There's not a pin nor pebble, so I will give you this,"

And upon the table she laid a silver fork.

So the girl's father, who had been so long a bachelor, looked at the silver fork.

Temperance.

Nothing can place the liquor traffic in the hands of respectable men. The traffic itself is a monstrous crime.—The Press.

A Thrilling Story.

A minister of the gospel told me of one of the most thrilling incidents I have heard in my life. A member of his congregation came home, for the first time in his life, intoxicated, and his boy met him on the doorstep, clapping his hands and exclaiming: "Papa has come home!"

He seized the boy by the shoulder, swung him around, staggered and fell in the hall. The minister said to me: "I spent the night in that house. I went out, bare my brow so that the night air might fall upon it and cool it. I walked up and down the hill. There was the child dead! There was his wife in strong convulsions and he asleep. A man about thirty years of age, having a blue mark upon the temple where the corner of the marble step had come in contact with the head as he swung him around, and a wife upon the brink of the grave! Mr. Gough," said my friend, "I cursed the drink. He had told me that I must remain until he woke and I did. When he awoke he passed his hand over his eyes, and exclaimed: 'What is the matter? Where am I? Where is my boy?'"

"You cannot see him."

"Stand out of my way! I will see my boy!"

"To prevent confusion I took him to the child's bed, and as I turned down the sheet and showed him the corpse he uttered a wild shriek—'Ah, my child!'"

The minister said further to me: "One year after that he was brought from a lunatic asylum to lie by the side with his wife in the grave, and I attended his funeral!"

The minister of the gospel told me that fact, to-day, a drunken hostler in a stable at Boston. Now, tell me what ruin will not do. It will debauch, imbrute and damn everything that is noble, bright, glorious and God-like in a human being. There is nothing drink will not do that is vile, dastardly, cowardly, sneaking or hellish. Why are we not to fight it till the end of our days?

Household Receipts.

SOFT GINGERBREAD. Excellent soft gingerbread is made of one cup of sugar, one cup of butter, one cup of cream, one cup of New Orleans molasses, four cups of sifted flour, one tablespoonful of soda dissolved in a little hot water, one tablespoonful of ginger, three well-beaten eggs, the rind grated of one lemon. Raisins may be added if you please.

Milk which is slightly turned or changed may be rendered fit for use again by stirring in a little soda.

Stale buttermilk may be made to taste as nicely as when fresh if they are dipped a moment or so in cold water, then put in a bowl and left to stand for five or ten minutes. They will turn out as light and crisp as when first baked.

To scour knives easily, mix a small quantity of baking soda with your bric-a-brac, and see if your knives do not polish themselves.

Pickles or vinegar will not keep in a jar that has ever had any kind of grease in it.

In canning fruit, it is needless trouble to heat or put the cans in hot water; just set them on a crash towel or any other cloth, and they will be perfectly safe.

The Probate Court Room.

One would think that a court which transacts business of such service and importance as the Probate Court should have suitable accommodations for the performance of its duties. The little room in Quincy where it now holds its sessions has but one window and no means of ventilation, and is often crowded nearly to suffocation. The judge, register, reporters, witnesses and lawyers are huddled together around a table after the manner in gaming rooms.

It is no suitable desk for the judge or register, no place of security for papers, wills and bonds being passed on by the court. No man or woman exposes his or her titles and measurement of property and estate so ruthlessly as the Probate papers are exposed in this court.

It is passing strange that our County Commissioners, men who are careful to the last degree of the interests of the county, men of public spirit, and all whom have property and have a large practice in the Probate Court, do not greatly interested for the safety of Probate papers and records, do not take hold of this business and provide proper accommodations for that court.

And another consideration not wholly fanciful, why other accommodations than the present should be provided, is in the possible danger to the practitioners in the present court room from their exposure to the effluvia arising from urinals, etc., in the adjoining rooms.

NEW FIRM. Messrs. F. A. Moreland & Co., two young men of enterprise and experience, have purchased of Mr. Geo. T. Deffries, his store in Robertson Block, and intend to keep a first-class stock of dry goods, to which they invite the citizens of Quincy and vicinity. They have already greatly improved the general appearance of the store. The windows have been very tastefully decorated with cretons, and a new water tank has been placed in the store for the accommodation of customers. On the counters our ladies will find some very pretty cambrics and calicoes, and new stock and patterns will be constantly added, as will be noticed by keeping watch of our advertising columns.

Mr. Deffries, who has a nice store in Hingham, will make his home in future in that place. On Friday last week he presented each of his former young lady clerks with a very pretty camp chair. They are very much appreciated by the ladies and Mr. Deffries has their best wishes.

POLITICAL. The Independent Republicans have a grand rally at the Town Hall, this evening. Among the able speakers, who are expected to address the meeting, are Dr. William Everett, Fred. A. Claffin and Rev. William R. Lord. Brown's Brigade Band will enliven the occasion with sweet music. All persons interested in political issues are invited.

A small flag bearing the name of St. John, the prohibition candidate for President, was flung to the breeze between the Town Hall and the Stone Temple on Wednesday evening. It was quite small and being placed nearly seventy feet above the street, made a very diminutive appearance. It was flung to the breeze about midnight and is said to be a joke by some of the "boys."

PERSONAL. Mrs. Lydia L. Trask, a much respected lady living in West Quincy, was taken suddenly sick on Sunday last while attending services at the Congregational Church. She left the church and started for her sister's, Mrs. Charles H. Hardwick, on Chestnut street, but was informed by Mrs. Rufus Foster who lives next door that the family were not at home. Mrs. Foster invited her in, and she remained there until a physician was sent for, who ordered her to be kept perfectly quiet. On Monday she had so far recovered as to be removed to Mr. Hardwick's, and we are pleased to say that she is much improved and in a few days will be restored to her usual health.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT. Mr. J. E. Johnson, a young man, 24 years of age, was run over and horribly cut to pieces on the Old Colony Railroad, near the Quincy station, on Wednesday afternoon last. He was employed as a brakeman on the road, and while on the top of a box car he attempted to catch a pear which was thrown to him from the rear of another car. His attention being attracted by the pear, the bridge struck the back of his head before he was aware of its proximity. He was knocked between the cars to the track and there fell, and was killed. Mr. Gilbert was called who held an inquest and his remains were taken to his home in South Boston.

WARD HAS THEM. Officer Fernald, agent for a society to prevent cruelty to dumb animals, caused two crippled horses to be killed on Monday. He found them on Hancock street a short distance north of Mr. Peter Butler's in a helpless condition. He afterwards learned that Mr. George W. Richardson of Assonet, Mass., claimed the animals, and that he had taken the horses in Boston with the intention of driving them to his home in that place, but they gave out when he arrived in Quincy.

TO VOTERS. A change in the law makes Monday next, Sept. 15th, the very latest date at which a person can be assessed for a poll tax, without which he or she will be unable to vote. This applies particularly to those who have not before been assessed or registered. Those who have not received tax bills for the present year can be pretty certain they have not been assessed, and should see that their voting privileges are secure before it is too late.

WEDDING. The marriage ceremony of Mr. Parke B. Swift of Athol, Mass., to Miss Isabel G. French, took place at the residence of the bride's father, Dr. C. S. French, on Monday evening. A few relatives were present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. E. W. Whitney, assisted by Rev. R. T. Sawyer. The happy couple will make their future home in Athol.

Mr. Frank Reed of Milford, is visiting friends in this town.

The old house on Franklin street where John Quincy Adams was born, has been adorned with a coat of red paint.

Hon. Albert Merrill of Philadelphia is visiting his mother, Mrs. Caroline W. Merrill, on Hancock street.

Mr. Charles H. Hardwick and daughter who have been rusticing in the woods of Maine for several weeks, returned home Thursday.

Miss Albertine W. Merrill, one of the clerks in Miss C. S. Hubbard's dry goods store, is spending her vacation at North Weymouth beach.

The Democratic flag has sailed for the Boston Convention. There was a very light wind, almost a dead calm at the beginning of the race, but towards the end of the regatta a squall sprang up and sent the yachts flying across the lines at a lively rate.

The reading by Miss Emma Fuller, at the Methodist Church, West Quincy, last Sabbath evening, was finely rendered and well appreciated by the audience.

The firm of Qualey & Willey, granite dealers, of Quincy, has been dissolved by mutual consent, and the business will be continued by the Qualey Brothers.

On our third page to-day will be found a striking and instructive illustration of the comparative worth of the various kinds of baking powders now in the market.

The registrars are busy making up the new voting list, and it is the interest of all to see that their names are registered, if they wish to vote at the next election.

Messrs. John Glover, 2d, and William L. Qualey have been drawn to serve as jurors at the Civil session of the September term of the Superior Court for Norfolk County.

The weather we have experienced since the first of September has been the hottest of any we have had this season. In fact, we have not seen in Quincy for many years so hot a spell as our present fortnight.

Our citizens should not forget to visit the Institute fair now open on Huntington avenue, Boston, when in the city. It has so many attractions that one cannot see all on one visit, but should go early and often.

As elsewhere announced the Universalists give their first supper and entertainment for this season at their vestry, next Wednesday evening. These occasions are among the most pleasing features of our social life.

Mr. William Farnum Smith left on Thursday for Lincoln, Neb., to receive his stenographic duties in the office of the General Superintendent of the Burlington & Missouri River R. R. Mr. Arthur B. Smith has a fine position as chief clerk in the same office.

There will be a gospel temperance meeting at the Universalist Church, next Sunday evening, at seven o'clock. Mr. George W. Pennington, Grand worthy Templar of Minnesota and Dakota, will deliver an address—nothing political. Everyone is invited. Let the temperance people of Quincy give our former townsman a hearty welcome.

Our streets are being constantly dug up by the Water and Gas Companies of Quincy, making it almost impossible to have good thoroughfares. These modern improvements, however, are much enjoyed and we must expect to put up with some inconveniences, but due care should be taken that all trenches are smoothed down as far as practicable, and not leave the high trenches that was allowed one year ago.

The Quincy Granite Company which has completed a beautiful monument at the Universalist Church, next Sunday evening, at seven o'clock. Mr. George W. Pennington, Grand worthy Templar of Minnesota and Dakota, will deliver an address—nothing political. Everyone is invited. Let the temperance people of Quincy give our former townsman a hearty welcome.

Hough's Neck.

Those who were fortunate enough to remain here have greatly enjoyed the place during the heated term of the present week.

Mr. W. I. Tuckerman's family spent Saturday and Sunday at Sunset Cottage.

A meeting of Hough's Neck Social Union was held on Saturday evening. On Friday evening next another meeting is to be held, and it is hoped that all who can will be present.

Mr. Charles Wheeler and wife with other members of the family who have occupied Dr. Dearing's cottage the past month, left on Monday for their home at Field's Corner.

Mr. Murray has commenced building operations on his fine lot adjoining Mr. C. S. Gordon's.

Mr. Alexander, who has occupied the "Sea Breeze" cottage the present season, and furnished excellent ice cream to the cottagers, was presented on Saturday evening with a handsome gold chain. The money to purchase the chain was contributed by the members of the Social Union and Chapel Association.

Two little children of a Mr. Bradbury, living on Rock Island, had a narrow escape from drowning by the sinking of the punt in which they were sailing.

A gold watch and chain was found on Great Hill on Thursday last.

The Last of the Season.

On Thursday the Quincy Yacht Club sailed its fifth, and last regatta of the season, off Gravesend Neck, Mass. There was a very light wind, almost a dead calm at the beginning of the race, but towards the end of the regatta a squall sprang up and sent the yachts flying across the lines at a lively rate.

The number of entries was small, and but little interest was shown in the race, owing to the fact that the championship of the different classes had already been decided.

The Erin and Queen Mab were the only boats entered in the first class. The Erin, capt. by Mr. Black, retained its title until the end of the contest. When the square came up she was nearly a half mile ahead. As soon as the heavy breeze struck her she lost her job, and the Queen Mab soon passed her. Following is the score:

NAME OF BOAT.	ACTUAL TIME.	CORRECTED TIME.
Queen Mab, J. L. Barrett, skipper.	2 15 15	2 45 24
Erin, J. C. Barrett, skipper.	2 20 30	2 50 39

SECOND CLASS.

White, H. A. Keith, skipper.	2 30 00	2 30 17
Pet. J. W. McFarland, skipper.	2 35 00	2 35 17
Spray, H. M. Parker, skipper.	2 40 00	2 40 17

THIRD CLASS.

Mirage, A. C. Clark, skipper.	2 41 00	2 41 17
Elise, C. P. Hartwick, skipper.	2 45 00	2 45 17
Spray, H. M. Parker, skipper.	2 50 00	2 50 17

There were two prizes of $5 and $3, in each class. The judges were P. H. Gavin, D. A. Perry and George A. Ordway.

Croucher and Mary E. Taber of Hough's Neck, Quincy, charged with larceny of a watch in length, cases not proved; Lorenzo Hayes of Braintree, liquor nuisance, defaulted; Charles Bickford of Hough's Neck, Quincy, violation of liquor laws, defaulted; Edward Fisher of Weymouth, for keeping a liquor nuisance was convicted; sentence deferred.

ASSAULTED. Officers Hunt and Richardson of Atlantic and Officer Henry H. Faxon of Quincy were on duty at the Quincy lockup on Wednesday evening by a gang of roughs who came from Neponset, where they had probably indulged too freely with intoxicating drink. It appears that Officers Hunt and Richardson were in the lockup for being drunk, when the gang rushed up around them and threw stones, etc. Officer Faxon, who was in the Selectmen's room, hearing a noise outside rushed out, when some one came up behind him and hit him on the back of the head with a brick, which knocked him down. He got up quickly and gave chase but did not succeed in arresting the chap. He will probably be obliged to go to Dedham for six months if he is found out and arrested.

A NEW JOURNAL. We are in receipt of the first issue of an elegantly illustrated weekly newspaper, devoted to the interests of the Quincy and vicinity sports of the day. It is the only paper we know of that not only records, but pictures, the leading events of the turf, field and stream. The number before us is accompanied by a splendid portrait of Miss Sarah Jewett, the distinguished actress, in the form of a supplement, while the paper itself is brimful of entertaining and instructive illustrations and reading matter.

THE OLD COLONY RAILROAD. This railroad is one of the best managed of any we know of. The pleasure and happiness of its passengers are carefully looked after. The result is the road is very liberally patronized. The Old Colony Railroad says: On Monday last, week, consisted of seventeen cars, and the regular Cape and Vineyard train was so lengthy that it had to be divided and side-tracked at North Middleboro, the turn out not being long enough to accommodate it. The home travel from the shore last week by the Old Colony Railroad was simply immense.

LOW RATE OF INTEREST. State Treasurer Carter has negotiated a temporary loan of $100,000, due July 1, 1887, recently authorized by the Governor and council of New Hampshire, at the rate of 3-8 per cent. interest. This is the lowest interest ever paid by that state under similar circumstances.

SALE IN BRAintree. On Wednesday last, E. E. Thayer, Esq., sold the real estate belonging to the heirs of the late Joseph R. Fryer to James T. Stevens, for $3,400.

An Explanation Needed.

To the Editors of the Patriot:

I find in the New York Evening Post of yesterday the following extraordinary language attributed to Congressman Long, although the words did not appear in the general press report, the occasion being Mr. Long's speech at Lewiston in the presence of Mr. Blaine.

"My independent friends in Massachusetts maintain that because Mr. Blaine wrote that letter to Mr. Fisher he is unworthy to be the great chief of the Republican party. Now, see how absurd all this noise about a small matter is. True and honest as many of them are, they apply their own argument to other countries. There is Mr. Gladstone, the greatest mind in Great Britain. Suppose that he should write to an intimate business friend in Liverpool asking to be admitted to participate in an enterprise in which that friend was influential, and reminding the friend that from his place in Parliament he had been able to do that enterprise a favor, would the liberal party in England think him unfit to continue in the premiership at the cost of thus losing his great talents to the party? There is that great man of blood and vim—Prince Bismarck—the most extraordinary combination of physical and mental strength—the world would suppose he should write such a letter to a business friend, could Germany therefore afford to lose him? There is that man of blood and vim—Prince Bismarck—the most extraordinary combination of physical and mental strength—the world would suppose he should write such a letter to a business friend, could Germany therefore afford to lose him? There is that man of blood and vim—Prince Bismarck—the most extraordinary combination of physical and mental strength—the world would suppose he should write such a letter to a business friend, could Germany therefore afford to lose him?"

The italics are mine. The only inference to be drawn from such language would seem to be that Mr. Blaine's sale of his official influence as Speaker of the House of Representatives to the cause of the "great talents" or "un-exceptional services," or because he is a "great man of blood and vim." If a man of such talents and such services, and such a man of blood and vim, is unworthy to be the great chief of the Republican party, then the party is unworthy to be the great chief of the Republican party.

Suburban Press Association.

On Saturday afternoon last, the members of the Suburban Press Association, with their wives and sweethearts, numbering about eighty, assembled at the Eastern depot in Boston to enjoy their third annual excursion; the objective point being the White Mountains, where it was hoped, that cool refreshing breezes and the beautiful mountain air would not only rest but invigorate the weary country editors who could appreciate an enjoyable time, when the opportunity to enjoy it in each other's society offered.

The programme for the trip was a very inviting one, but owing to the number of the party was somewhat changed. Instead of stopping at Crawford House, which was unable to accommodate the whole party, we pushed on to the Twin Mountain House, in Carrol. This has been in former years the favorite resort of Henry Ward Beecher. This hotel is quite large and can accommodate some three hundred guests. Everything in the house was neat and inviting, but we think the surroundings could be greatly beautified.

We arrived at this pleasant place about half past eight, tired and hungry, having rode since half past one o'clock. After a light supper we were glad to seek our couches and a sweet rest, and a good night's sleep. The rooms were very pleasant and the beds soft and inviting, and after a refreshing night's rest, Sunday morning saw us gathered around the breakfast table with good appetites and happy faces.

After breakfast, strolls were enjoyed by many who felt anxious to catch a glimpse of Mount Washington, but it was too late to go. The only thing we had to content to gaze on the grand view of the many mountains which surround the place and of which the eye never seemed to grow weary. Some of the party visited Mount Washington while others took pleasant drives around the country.

In the evening a large assemblage gathered in the parlor to listen to some excellent singing, and at an early hour the party separated to seek repose and be better prepared to enjoy the next day's pleasure. The next morning a trip to the Crawford House, of which we will speak next week.

A MARVELOUS STORY
TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.
FROM THE SON: "My father read in the Gleaner. My father read in the Gleaner.
He has been a great sufferer from Sciurus, and the enclosed letter will tell you that a cure has been found."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years, but it did not show itself in the form of a scurvy or in the form of a skin disease until about a year ago, when it gradually spread so over his entire body, that I began to be seriously alarmed, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health
as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the fact in his case."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty to me to state that I have derived from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scurfy eruptions. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked and bled. The blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My skin has begun to improve at once. The scurf has all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 72 years of age. Many persons who have written me a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here told to you, that AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is the best. W. C. FILLIS."

The Quincy Patriot.
SATURDAY, SEPT. 20, 1884.
Indian Summer.
There is a time, just when the first begin to have old winter's
When Autumn in a reverie lies,
The mellow daylight drowses away.
To gaze more on the hill and field,
To mark how many shadows they bind,
And see if all are ripened well,
With fading tints the dappled green,
The drowsy drowses look and give
Their sweetest essence to the eye,
For her who made their beauty live.
She enters 'neath the woodland shade,
Her sighs lift the lingering leaf,
And bear it gently where it lies,
The loved and lost ones of our life.
At last old Autumn, rising, takes Again his scepter and his throne,
With bounteous hand the true he shakes,
Faint on gathering all his own.
Sweet Summer, sighing, dies the plain,
And waiting Winter, gaunt and grim,
Saw niter Autumn bound his grain,
And smiles to think it's all for him.

Farm and Garden.
The Care of Farm Implements.
Every farmer who employs transient laborers learns the importance of having every farm implement put in its proper place every night, or before if the job be finished before night. If it is left here last used by one who is not constantly employed, when wanted, the one who used it last but not present, it will be very difficult to find it. It is important that the farmer himself should be careful to keep all farm implements in their proper places, for if he is careless, it is very certain that his hired help will imitate him, and in this way the implements of the farm will be so scattered that it will be very difficult to find them.
When tools are left scattered over the farm, there is not only a great loss of time in looking after them, but often when found they are in no condition to do good work easily, even if they are not decayed so as to break when put to use. As we ride through the country
we see many costly farm implements that have been left in the field, to be housed at the farmer's convenience, which evidently does not come until months after. This is not economy, for most of farm implements that are now in use, are of a character to be seriously injured by being exposed to either rain or sunshine, and when exposed to both, it requires but a short time to render them nearly worthless.
Few builders on the farm are more important than a tool house; this should be large enough to hold all the tools, and it there be room enough inside, to make the simple repairs on the implements, it will be a great convenience.
There are portions of almost every farm implement that should be kept well oiled, and other portions that should be well oiled; there are things that every farmer can do when the weather is not suitable to work out in the field. Many implements will last twice as long if kept well oiled and painted, and yet the cost of doing it is so trifling that it is not worth considering.
The introduction of improved farm implements, has so largely increased the value of the tools that are necessary to run a moderate size farm, that it is an important question as to how to take care of them so as to make them last the longest.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Mr. E. L. Fickett, of Rockland, has this year tried an experiment in fruit raising. Early in the season he removed a part of the apples from a Baldwin tree, and as a result has now
a crop of splendid fruit, large and fair, amply compensating for that destroyed
last summer. The quantity is estimated to be about as large as if the whole crop had been allowed to grow.

The best broods of hens for those who want non-sitters that will lay good-sized eggs are the Houdans, La Fleche, and Black Spanish. The best broods for winter layers are the Asiatic.
The best "general purpose" brood for the farmer is the Plymouth Rock. The brood that possesses all the good qualities, the one perfect brood—well,
there ain't any such.—Fanny Field.

In California the prune culture is a great success. Each tree bears about 100 pounds of prunes, worth about fourteen cents per pound.

A person speaking to an old lady who was hard of hearing and getting impatient because she did not catch the words, said:
"Why, it is plain as A B C."
"That may be," she replied, "but I am D E F."

"Mary," said a mother to her daughter,
"has Harry proposed yet?"
"Not yet, but I think he will be fore many days."
"Because he asked me if you expected to live with me if I married, and I told him no."

"Ever had a cyclone here?" asked a Kansas man who was visiting a country man in the East.
"A cyclone? Oh, yes," said his aunt.
"Deacon Brown's son brought one from Boston a spell ago, but law! he couldn't ride it. Tumbled off every time he tried it."

Ralph, who was to pass the afternoon with the doctor's little daughter, was given two pieces of candy. When he returned, his mother asked if he gave the larger piece to the little girl.
"No," said Ralph; "you told me always to give the biggest piece to the company, and I was the company over there so I took the biggest myself."

"Young Wife," said a mother to her daughter, "is it true that you are going to be married?"
"I—well, to tell you the truth, I bet Toolee $5 that I weighed more than he did, and we were going down to the store to settle it to-night."

Mrs. Montie (who accompanied by her maid goes down the steps of her piazza and glances up at the house)—
"My, Mary, I told you to leave one of the large lamps in the hall!"
"Mary—I did love one, ma'am!"
Mrs. Montie—"I see nothing of it."
The hall looks very dark."
Mary—"Oh, I blew it out, ma'am."

Temperance.
The Breeding Business.
When Moses spoiled the golden calf business he did not stop to inquire how much money was invested in it. Neither did the Prohibitionists stop to inquire how much capital Prohibition will wipe out in the brewing business. It is always necessary for sinners to sacrifice something when they mend their ways, whether they do it voluntarily or from compulsion. The brewers will have to bear it just like all ordinary sinners.—The Home Advocate.

PEACH JAM. Take the desired quantity of fully ripe peaches. Pare them, take out the stones, and cut them into quarters. Put the quartered fruit into an enameled preserving pan, and set it over the fire, stirring the contents continually until they become perfectly soft. Then rub it through a sieve to take out the lumps. If any of these remain, beat the pulp well until the mass is thoroughly smooth. Then to every pound of the pulp add a pound of sifted sugar. The peach pits should then be added, using about one-fourth of them, having them blanched, and bruising well before putting them in.
Now put the pan and contents on a brisk fire, stirring and skimming constantly. Fifteen minutes will be long enough to cook the pulp after it commences to boil. Then remove the pan from the fire, fill your jars, cover tightly, and keep them in a dry, cool place.

GREEN CORN GRIDDLE CAKES. One pint of grated sweet corn; one teaspoonful of salt; one beaten egg; one large spoonful of sweet milk; two large spoonfuls of flour, and a little black pepper. Add a large spoonful of melted butter, and mix well with a spoon.
Drop on a hot, buttered griddle, and fry until a rich brown color on both sides. Shape the cakes so as to resemble oysters, which they are like in taste.
Nice with meats for dinner, if served very hot.

LEED APPLES. Pare and core one dozen large apples; fill with sugar mixed with a little butter and cinnamon or nutmeg; bake till nearly done. Cool, and, if possible without breaking, put the apples on another dish. If not possible, pour off the juice; have some icing prepared; lay it on the top and sides and set into the oven a few minutes to brown slightly. Serve with cream.

HAMBLED BISCUIT. Into a pound and a half of flour rub a quarter of a pound of lard or butter and a pinch of salt. Mix enough milk or water with it to make a stiff dough. Beat the dough well with a rolling-pin for half an hour or more, or until the dough will break when pulled. Form into little biscuits, prick them on top several times with a fork, and bake.

TO BAKE BREAD CRUMBS. Moisten crumbs of white and Graham bread with milk and water, add a little butter, summer savory and celery salt. Baked brown it is as toothsome as turkey dressing.

BROWN APPLE. Pare and core large sour apples. Pour over them a syrup of sugar and water sufficient to sweeten, sprinkle a little more sugar over the apples and bake brown. It is delicious.

WINTER MILLINERY.
A new, small shape in millinery
that probably will lead, shows a sudden change from the old. Hats of modest dimension come next, and conservative and likewise some stylish souls will cling to the capote, which this season appears with the familiarity of an old friend. Hats are with high pointed crowns and narrow brims. In the way of material what is not felt is velvet, and what is not velvet is felt;
the latter often uncut, forming the chief part of almost all trimmings, either by the piece or as velvet ribbon
from two to three inches wide. Curled velvet ribbons, like Astrakhan-like loops with satin or gros grain reverse is very stylish, and in keeping with new ideas in dress goods (of which more hereafter), while uncut velvet is also very fashionable. Lace, either black or gilded, is used in many and many fashions, constituting accessories, the latter being extremely fanciful, by reason of old mixtures with small regard to the properties. "Crazy quilt" ideas prevail just here; heads, wings or breasts form veritable jumbles, and with bizarre effects almost unparalleled in the history of ostrich feathers, which are in small demand.

MATERIALS.
Cloths are in many varieties, bison,
bourette-bison, where cross-stitches
sometimes hold down the rough textures
in stripes and bands, rough bourettebison, where cross-stitches, which are in small demand.

VELVETS AND SILKS.
Velvet was scarce ever so fashionable and is seen with unlooked-for frequency, such as stripes of contrasting color, over-casting of small bright flowers, velvet flowers of longer pile than the surface, or chine or chapelaine alternatives, while the frise or looped velvet is markedly novel. Of course these sensations will be carefully employed and submitted to the plain velvet, but for cloaks, we find large self-colored floral and other patterns will be largely used, and uncut velvet as well; both employed also for costumes, but in especial demand as cloakings. The success of velvetene is also assured, and when really good,
as in case of the peerless Nonpareil, it will be constantly substituted with satisfaction to both wearer and beholder. Here the latest thoughts are noticeable; colors are disengaged
while novelties in weaving give room for great choice. Silks take on new colors prevailing everywhere, such as golden brown, blue and red, purple, bronze, gray blue and moss, in brocades especially, giving proof of how much can be done by combinations.

DINNER PARTY. Mrs. Benjamin Curtis entertained quite a number of her friends at her residence, the present week. A dinner of superior excellence was partaken of, and a good time was enjoyed. Among the members of the party who gathered around the table, was the following:—Mrs. Harvey Field, seventy-three years of age, Mrs. Adam Curtis, eighty-three, Mrs. John Willoughby, Mrs. Dyer, seventy-nine, with Mrs. Benjamin Curtis, herself, at seventy-one. These ladies, with several younger ones, assembled together to renew and keep fresh the friendship of their younger days, and to enjoy a few hours of social enjoyment in each other's society.

BIRTHDAY GATHERING. A number of relatives, friends and neighbors assembled at the residence of Mr. Joseph G. Brackett, on the 18th inst., to celebrate his birthday. He is quite healthy, very erect and smart; and one would not judge from appearance that he was much over sixty. He is full of gaiety and all who visited him on this occasion found him in the pleasant and social company of younger days. His sister, Mrs. Thomas J. Nightingale, who is two years older, was able to be present on this festive occasion. Mr. Brackett was born on School street, in the old house on the western side, now owned by the railroad bridge, now owned by Miss Harwick.

SKATING RINK. The work on the large skating rink near the Quincy station, goes on rather slowly, on account of the lack of workmen. A dozen or more good carpenters are wanted at once. The basement story is raised and the first floor is being laid. The lumber, being sawed at Mr. Rice's mill in Maine, is already on hand, and in two more weeks will make a great change in its general appearance. It will be an immense building, the largest in town, and will accommodate 1000 to 2000 in good shape; and give room for the skaters.

WATER COMPANY. At the annual meeting of the Quincy Water Company, held on the 11th inst., Charles H. Porter, John A. Gordon, William L. Faxon, and W. C. McCallan were chosen directors; Charles H. Porter, President; W. L. Faxon, Clerk and Treasurer. The number of consumers was increasing as fast as could have been expected, and the average amount received from each customer was fully up to the average of the best companies. It was voted not to extend the mains during the present year.

FIRE. A small shed and barn, on the corner of Summer and Main streets, owned by Mr. John M. Coffey, partly filled with hay, was discovered to be on fire yesterday, (Friday) morning. An alarm was rung in from box 34, and by the prompt action of the Fire Department, but little damage was done; although the shed and hay were nearly destroyed. The house was attached to the shed, but was but little damaged. Loss about $100. The building was insured. The fire is supposed to have been accidental.

Desecrating the Sabbath. We copy the following from the Boston Daily Globe:—Numerous complaints have been made by the residents in the portion of the town that adjoins Neponset, during the past few months, that gangs of young fellows whose ages range from 15 to 25 years, having ostensibly from South Boston, have been in the habit of visiting that part of the town on Sundays and making the day one of unlicensed pleasure. Foot races, base ball and other athletic sports have filled up the day. And the fellows have not scrupled to make free with the fruit on the farms. The authorities have not as yet given any heed to the complaints referred to.

The following notice, published in the Globe to-day, attracted the attention of a reporter:—

$300 REWARD.—$300 reward will be paid for information that will secure the arrest and conviction of certain members of a party of base ball players, who cowardly and feloniously assaulted Thomas McDonald last Sunday afternoon, Sept. 14, 1884, on the grounds of the undesignated in North Quincy, Mass. All communications confidential. Wm. J. R. Evans, 92 Ulica street, Boston.

At the Evans farm at North Quincy. Thomas G. McDonald, a solid-built Scotchman, has charge. He stated to-day that he had sole charge of the farm, which comprises about sixty acres, and that he occupied it with his family through the year. The farm was owned by William J. R. Evans, 92 Ulica street, Boston, and acting as Mr. Evans' agent he had endeavored to keep the premises free from trespassers.

Two weeks ago last Sunday, while passing a portion of the Evans farm, McDonald discovered a party purloining fruit. He ordered them to leave the premises, and they set a building on fire, but Mr. McDonald had a stout bit of hickory stick in his hand and soon doubled the dog up. One of the party then made an attempt upon him, but the hickory stick reduced him also to submission. The whole party were driven off of the premises.

Last Sunday a party of twenty-five or thirty men, who were in the midst of a crowd, was in the midst of a crowd, and told them that they must leave the premises. They at first demurred, but afterward seemed to look at the matter in a different light, and made preparations to leave, when suddenly the agent, who was in the midst of a crowd, was violently seized by the arms by a man on either side, while two others began to beat him upon the head with the bats which they had in their hands. One stepped up behind him with a bat, and gave McDonald a blow on the head, which was so hard that he was beaten. Her screams finally brought assistance, and the gang fled, returning as they come.

Big Blaze at Neponset.

At about 6.15 Thursday morning the watchman of the A. T. Stearns Lumber Company's Works at Neponset discovered that a fire had broken out in the rear of the engine room, a two story brick building 30 by 40 feet. E. E. Keiser immediately rang in an alarm from box 343. The department quickly responded, but it was found necessary to ring in a second alarm, which was soon followed by a third.

The flames quickly spread to the lumber on the wharf and the main mill, a brick building two stories high, 200 feet long and 200 feet wide. This building constituted the planing room, door room, gutter factory and moulding department. In it were a large number of machines, some of which were very valuable. It also contained various kinds of wood, which was being manufactured into the various products of the mill. It also contained kits of tools owned by the men employed in the factory.

The A. T. Stearns Works were situated on Taylor street and were bounded in the rear by Neponset river. They covered an area of about five acres with a large and serviceable wharf piled with lumber. The mill was two stories one hundred feet long and seventy wide. At the right of the engine room was a large carpenter's shop.

The establishment was one of the largest in New England, and employed from eighty to one hundred and twenty-five men in the mill.

It is estimated that at least 4,500,000 feet of cypress wood was on hand in its various stages. It would bring an average price of $55 per 1,000 feet. It is estimated that the various other kinds of wood on the wharf will amount to 2,000,000 feet. With this were burned the buildings, a number of saws, a large portion of the wharf, and a very large quantity of finished and unfinished wood. A rough estimate of the loss is $200,000, which is said to be partly insured.

Two vessels which lay in the mud at the foot of the wharf were only saved from destruction by the effective work of the fireboat William Flinders and the police boat Protector.

A very efficient aid was rendered by the Quincy firemen. A steamer, hose, hook and ladder and two chemical companies responded to a call with the chief. To their efforts are due the saving of the Taylor street end of the boiler house, where the engine was situated, and this was the only property saved within the square covered by the flames.

In regard to the origin of the fire, nothing has yet been ascertained. In the boiler room, where it is all probability originated, are used the stoves which accumulate from the various departments of the mill, and it is generally believed that the fire started in these.

It is understood that the result of the fire was telegraphed to Mr. A. T. Stearns, who is in Florida, and that the answer came back to set the men at work clearing away the debris, and to build new works immediately. This firm have been in business for thirty years. They were burned out in 1856 and 1858. Since then they have been damaged by several minor fires. This is undoubtedly the most disastrous conflagration that has taken place in Neponset for many years.

Notwithstanding the heavy loss some valuable property was saved: The engine which was nearly new and very expensive, was in a room nearly fire-proof, and was uninjured. Two valuable planers were but little injured, the two story office opposite the fire, also the new part of the pile wharf next to the channel was saved by the fireboats. The J. Q. Adams Chemical Engine of Atlantic did good service in saving a lumber shed, in which was stored a quantity of gutters.

Atlantic News.

ATLANTIC, SEPT. 23, 1884.
DEAR PATRIOT:—Thinking that a word now and then from our village would be of interest to your readers, I will commence by saying that our citizens seem quite well satisfied with the progress made on our streets this summer. Among those recently repaired are the following: Contest avenue in the hollow or bog hole, which has heretofore been very dangerous, is now in quite good condition; how long the improvement will last, we do not know, but that in the near future, the bog hole condition of the road, the town will have to bridge that part of the street. Walker and Prospect streets have been graded, sidewalks mended, and put in good repair, those improvements are greatly appreciated by our citizens.

Now we would speak of a grievance, the result of a case of incendiary lately tried at Dedham; the defendant, one of a gang that infest this neighborhood, was tried for setting fire to a hay stack of one of our old and most worthy citizens, William Mahoney, near the depot, on the morning of July 4th. He was caught and arrested by officers Hunt, and Glover, and lodged in the lockup, after an examination in Quincy, he was sent to Dedham for trial. Four of his comrades came on the stand and testified, under oath, that the defendant, was asleep at some remote part of the fire; but the fellow confessed his guilt on the stand, hoping thereby that the law would be lenient with him and he would be let off easily.

Now, let us look at his character and previous record, which the court records show. He has once before been arrested on each of the following cases: once for drunkenness, once for horse stealing, once for robbery, and now in the face of all these, he was let off at "Dedham" on probation, by paying costs of court, in this offence. He is now around our streets boasting that he did nothing with him. Now had he had his just dues, the supposition in your issue of the 20th, that one of the incendiaries had moved out of town, or was in jail, would have been fulfilled.

Now I ask you what use is there in New Law, or the town offering a reward for the incendiary, if after being caught the rascals are let off so easily. Also what should be the fate of those comrades who went on to the stand and testified to a deliberate falsehood. Should they not be dealt with according to the laws in our Statute book.

Returning to Mr. Mahoney's misfortune, it will be recollected that his hay stack was burned once before, about a year ago, and since then he has had many of his trees broken down and spoiled. On the 26th of August, this year, the incendiary torch was applied to another hay stack on his grounds.

But to cap all other depredations, within the last two weeks, some miscreant has done about three bushels of his potatoes; sometime between two days.

Now, as I do not wish any harm to come to me, but justice to all, I would like to ask where our lamplighter was on Monday and Tuesday nights, when the lights went out, or were not lighted, and it has been suggested that this question can be answered by officer Perry of Neponset.

LAW AND ORDER.

A Hen Thief.

We find in the Milton News the following amusing dramatic account of the discovery in Milton of a hen thief, the capture of three bags of hens and one bag of pears, and the escape of the rascal by the skin of his teeth:

The locality about Bent & Co.'s bakery was the scene of a lively and exciting comedy, in many ways, last Wednesday morning. The title of the play in real life was, "Hens and Their Captives." The principal character consisted of the hen, the unknown, a man about 45 years old, light complexion, sandy mustache and dressed in a heavy suit and a black derby. The hero is first seen by Henry S. Young, about 4 A. M., wending his way down Highland street, meditating on the fact that he had been taken in by a young man who interviewed him in regard to "whence and where." He is disconcerted and tells the naughty story about it to the police.

The next scene discloses the star actor crossing the field owned by Miss Rachel Reed, under the protection of the bright eyes of Tommy Quirk. The next scene is located on Highland street, and takes in the estate of the Bent Bros. and Bent & Co.'s bakery. The principal parts in this scene were sustained by William Ormsby, William Farlan and Henry S. Young, who were seen carrying bags from the store wall of Reed Bros. to the bakery yard where nearly all of the workmen were taken in.

A lively interest in the three bags of hens and one of pears which were seized, was brought to the notice of the police. There will be a seating capacity for six hundred people. The main entrance will be on Commercial street, to be six feet in width; there will be a ladies room 11 by 11, pole room 8 by 11, ticket office 7 by 11, skate room 8 by 11, janitor's room 6 by 11, and genies' room 11 by 13. In front of the skating surface a railing will be erected, which will prevent the persons standing at the front of the hall from approaching too near the skaters, this railing will be about 50 by 7 feet. Around the east and west sides two rows of chairs on a platform will be arranged, and at the front there will be a gallery, which can be easily reached by a stairway, near the ladies' room at the northwest corner. The building is to be built on a vacant lot, and thought, by gas. It will be handsome and pointed both at the interior and exterior. Mr. G. W. Baker will have the general management of the rink, to be assisted by an able corps of aids.—Weymouth Gazette.

The People's Party.

The following are the nominations made by the People's Party Convention at Worcester on Wednesday: For Governor—Hon. M. J. McCaffrey, Worcester.

For Lieutenant-Governor—Col. John P. Marsh of Springfield. Secretary of State—Col. John P. Sweeney of Lawrence. Treasurer—Nathaniel S. Cushing of Middleboro.

Auditor—Israel W. Andrews of Taunton. For State Senator—Col. Thomas W. Clarke of Boston. Electors-at-Large—John I. Baker of Beverly and Col. A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree.

GREAT REDUCTION. The competition among the glass manufacturers of Pittsburg is so sharp that goblets formerly sold at $6 per pair now go for $2, while $2 goblets sell for 35 cents.

For the Patriot.

Ex-Gov. Logan at Wollaston.
It is greatly to be regretted that the "prudence" of the Republican Town Committee led them to decline the challenge of the Independents to a joint fair and open debate on the great truth in the matters at issue be effectively brought out. Newspaper discussion, of course, is very valuable; but the difficulty there is that people as a rule read only the papers that advocate one side—either the anti-fair or the case may be—the great political controversy.

Hence strong partisans are apt to remain absolutely ignorant of the real nature and bearings of a great part of the evidence against the candidate of their party they periphrastically support. For example, imagine the state of mind of those whose political nutriment is derived exclusively from a steady reading of the Boston Traveller or Boston Journal, or (on the other side) of the Boston Post. Such readers are necessarily in an unhealthy prejudiced state of mind which renders them an easy prey to the demagogic stump orator, who plays on their prejudices and misapprehensions to the detriment of the truth. Now, all this would be different, were the race of open debate were, in the presence of the audience assembled, the omissions and misrepresentations of one side would be at once detected and exposed by the champions of the other side.

These considerations were brought forcibly to my mind by the speech that he would be expected to make at the speech which was my fortune to hear, but which surpassed my highest expectations by its misrepresentations and suppressions of the actual truth. Whether the orator was influenced by the fact that his audience was largely composed of women and children, upon whose political ignorance he could safely rely, or whether his speech at Wollaston is a fair sample of the speeches he makes anywhere and everywhere, I do not know, but certain it is that his Wollaston speech was marred with fallacy and sophistry.

Take for example his rejoinder to the great issues that have been before the country since the advent of the Republican party. In 1864 it was a question of carrying on the war; in 1868 a question of political reconstruction; in 1872 and 1876 was the question of honest money. But in 1872 and 1876 the question was not money, but a service of corruption under a Republican administration. Under a Republican administration, in 1872 he joined the Greenback movement and voted against the Republican party. But of all this he said not a word to his Wollaston audience. And this is only a sample illustration of what continually occurred throughout his speech. He referred to a civil service law that has been enacted, but omitted to mention the fact that it was enacted after the elections of 1882, when the reformers of the country joined with the Democrats and turned a Republican Congress into a Democratic one. Ex-Gov. Logan warmly eulogized President Arthur, but he forgot to inform the ladies in arms and others who sat before him why, with such a paragon before them, the Republicans at Chicago failed to nominate him for President. And so on, throughout his whole talk, under the appearance of the greatest candor, there was the continual presentation of pleasant-sounding sophistries, which might impose on a weak or ignorant mind. The same defect was apparent when he came to refer to the Mugwump letters. He simply misrepresented utterly the character and significance of those letters.

He declared that in the famous ruling in 1869, on the Little Rock Railroad bill, Mr. Blaine merely told a member "how to make a point of order"; that was all; the truth being, as every student of those letters knows, widely different. And the same observation applies to his version of the letter written by Blaine for Fisher to copy and sign as his (Fisher's) own, a letter which gave Blaine no choice but to copy and sign a remarkable lie about the amount and character of Blaine's interest in the Little Rock securities.

But space fails to permit of adequate exposure of the omissions and misrepresentations referred to. CRITIC.

EAST WEYMOUTH. A large skating rink is being erected at the corner of Madison and Commercial streets, East Weymouth. The dimensions of the building are 143 feet in length by 69 feet in width, with 17 feet posts, the skating surface will be 50 by 100 feet, will be a partial eclipse of the sun in this section. There will be a seating capacity for six hundred people. The main entrance will be on Commercial street, to be six feet in width; there will be a ladies room 11 by 11, pole room 8 by 11, ticket office 7 by 11, skate room 8 by 11, janitor's room 6 by 11, and genies' room 11 by 13. In front of the skating surface a railing will be erected, which will prevent the persons standing at the front of the hall from approaching too near the skaters, this railing will be about 50 by 7 feet. Around the east and west sides two rows of chairs on a platform will be arranged, and at the front there will be a gallery, which can be easily reached by a stairway, near the ladies' room at the northwest corner. The building is to be built on a vacant lot, and thought, by gas. It will be handsome and pointed both at the interior and exterior. Mr. G. W. Baker will have the general management of the rink, to be assisted by an able corps of aids.—Weymouth Gazette.

For the Patriot.

Ex-Gov. Logan at Wollaston.
It is greatly to be regretted that the "prudence" of the Republican Town Committee led them to decline the challenge of the Independents to a joint fair and open debate on the great truth in the matters at issue be effectively brought out. Newspaper discussion, of course, is very valuable; but the difficulty there is that people as a rule read only the papers that advocate one side—either the anti-fair or the case may be—the great political controversy.

Hence strong partisans are apt to remain absolutely ignorant of the real nature and bearings of a great part of the evidence against the candidate of their party they periphrastically support. For example, imagine the state of mind of those whose political nutriment is derived exclusively from a steady reading of the Boston Traveller or Boston Journal, or (on the other side) of the Boston Post. Such readers are necessarily in an unhealthy prejudiced state of mind which renders them an easy prey to the demagogic stump orator, who plays on their prejudices and misapprehensions to the detriment of the truth. Now, all this would be different, were the race of open debate were, in the presence of the audience assembled, the omissions and misrepresentations of one side would be at once detected and exposed by the champions of the other side.

These considerations were brought forcibly to my mind by the speech that he would be expected to make at the speech which was my fortune to hear, but which surpassed my highest expectations by its misrepresentations and suppressions of the actual truth. Whether the orator was influenced by the fact that his audience was largely composed of women and children, upon whose political ignorance he could safely rely, or whether his speech at Wollaston is a fair sample of the speeches he makes anywhere and everywhere, I do not know, but certain it is that his Wollaston speech was marred with fallacy and sophistry.

Take for example his rejoinder to the great issues that have been before the country since the advent of the Republican party. In 1864 it was a question of carrying on the war; in 1868 a question of political reconstruction; in 1872 and 1876 was the question of honest money. But in 1872 and 1876 the question was not money, but a service of corruption under a Republican administration. Under a Republican administration, in 1872 he joined the Greenback movement and voted against the Republican party. But of all this he said not a word to his Wollaston audience. And this is only a sample illustration of what continually occurred throughout his speech. He referred to a civil service law that has been enacted, but omitted to mention the fact that it was enacted after the elections of 1882, when the reformers of the country joined with the Democrats and turned a Republican Congress into a Democratic one. Ex-Gov. Logan warmly eulogized President Arthur, but he forgot to inform the ladies in arms and others who sat before him why, with such a paragon before them, the Republicans at Chicago failed to nominate him for President. THE TALLAPOOSA. The Merritt Wrecking Co. is slowly progressing on the work of raising the Tallapoosa, and it will probably be three months before she is towed to the Brooklyn navy yard. The small stack which once floated near by and buoyed, and the steamer will be raised by pontoons, which are secured to her at low tide, and as they rise on the flood the whole concern will be towed toward shore, until it grounds, when the pontoons will again be "shorter" and the ship, and in the end the Tallapoosa will be brought above water, pumped out, and towed to New York. The Wrecking Co.'s headquarters are at Elgartown.

ANNUAL MEETING. The Hyde Park Horticultural Society held its first annual meeting at Grand Army Hall, Wednesday evening. There was a very fine display of flowers and fruit. President N. C. Eustis presided at the supper, at which speeches were made by several prominent citizens.

H. H. Faxon's Acceptance.

To Charles Almy, President, and William H. Colcord, Secretary, Prohibition State Convention:
GENTLEMEN:—I am in receipt of your letter advising me of my nomination to the Prohibition party, for Lieutenant-Governor of this Commonwealth. I accept the nomination, and my heartfelt thanks are hereby tendered to the convention of noble men and women, loyal to their convictions of right and duty. I cannot express in words my appreciation of the great honor conferred upon me by a convention which endorses the principle of virtue before party policy. I do not commit any election among the possibilities, but I would much rather be a defeated candidate for Lieutenant-Governor by a party of right, than an elected President of the United States by the votes of those whose love for a party leads them to screen and defend its vices. I think it useless to recite to you what I would do if elected to the honorable position. It is always safer to judge a man by what he has done in the past than by what he promises to do in the future.

The resolutions adopted by the convention are brief and comprehensive. The platform is one which honors any man who stands upon it, and its sentiments expressed therein are fitting tributes to the memory of departed leaders, and worthy of adoption by present ones. There is no greater enemy to civilization and sound government than the man who ignores principle and votes for a candidate simply because he represents the rabble caller of his party.

The form of the call for caucuses is used by the Republican State Central Committee, and adopted by the Blaine and Logan followers of Quincy, was a stupendous insult to the self-respect and intelligence of every honest voter. The Republican leaders brought it into being, and it ought to be placed over the party's entrance at the end of the present campaign, with this inscription: "The platform which helped to bury you once Grand Old Party."

LIGNUM.
We desire to call attention to the new floor-covering called Lignum. As its name indicates, it is largely composed of wood, laid on a heavy linen background, and is very durable. It is warm and noiseless, and in appearance closely resembles French tile. This fabric comes in rolls 18 and 24 feet wide, so that seams in the carpet are avoided, and any-shaped room can be covered with one piece.

For hard wear we can confidently recommend Lignum, and it is particularly desirable for Dining Rooms, Halls and Bath Rooms, or for any spaces where Oil Cloths are usually laid. Special prices made to Hotels, Restaurants, Hospitals and Public Buildings.
